

Project Three Report

This was my shortest project yet, and only took me around 3 hours of coding to complete. It was very straightforward, and I found that I was very easily able to understand how to do this one.

This project, while simple, will be very important down the road and will allow me to easily implement delays into future projects.